TESTING TIMES

Much like a mirror, exams bring all the stakeholders face to face with reality. They reflect not only the child's understanding of the concepts taught, but also highlight areas that require little but 'extra' efforts. Necessary for course correction for both the students and the teachers, examinations are an important tool in any education system. This academic year's first online exams recently commenced in The Sagar School. Students' efforts were supported by the in-house GyanSagar portal that made the process smooth.

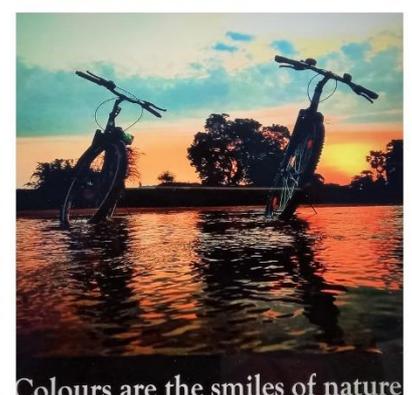

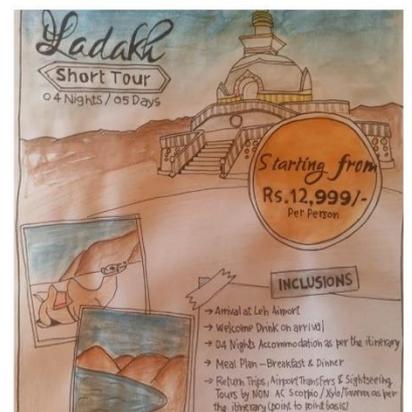

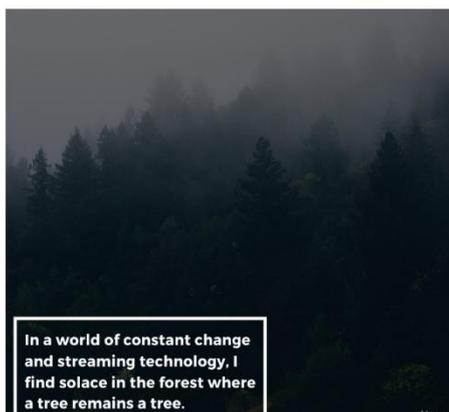

Keep Calm and Write On!

CREATIVE ENDEAVOURS

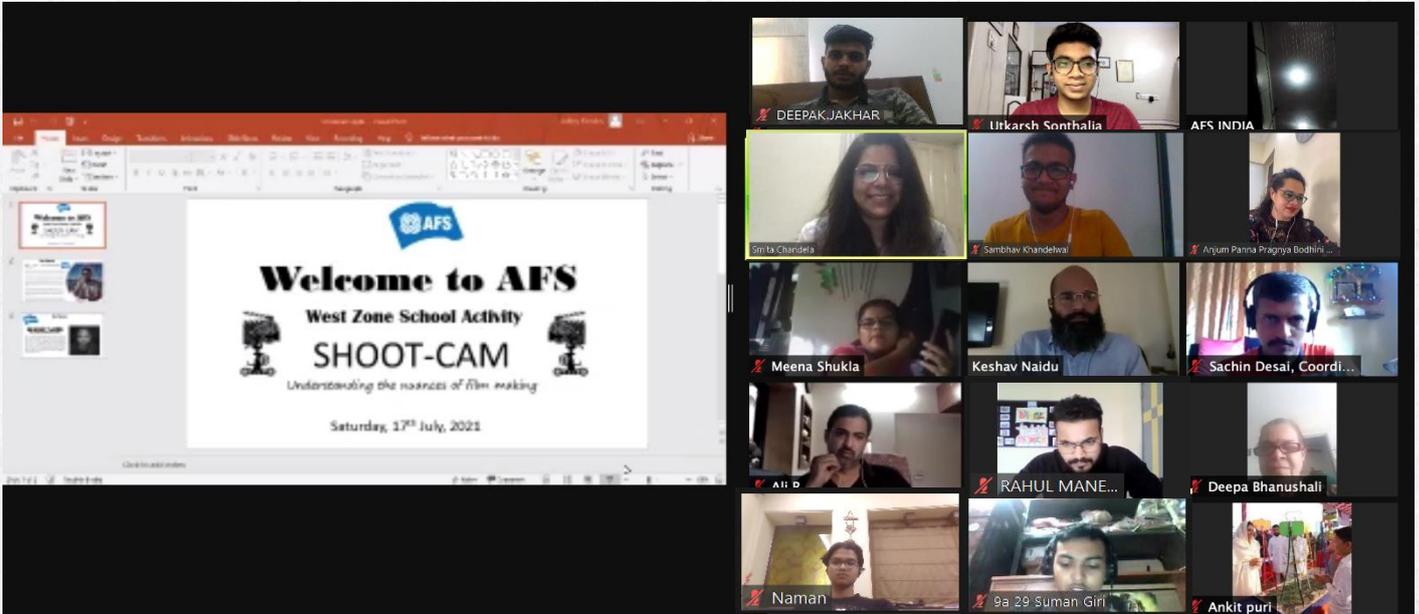

The aim of infusing Art Activities and Art Integrated Activities in the curriculum is not only to stimulate exploration, critical thinking and creativity for a deeper understanding of topics but also to make learning a joyful experience. To that effect, all subject teachers have formulated lesson plans with the inclusion of Performing and Visual Arts and the students have executed these ideas with their individual talents and expertise in technology.

In the quest to explore Arts in Education, Sagarians have amped up their efforts to come up with singular creations applying traditional methods and innovative technology. Take a look at the handmade and digital creations on State Tourism and the photographs taken by the students of Class XII as part of their English syllabus.

AFS - SHOOT CAM

We all have a vision, a perspective and an opinion, but are we able to capture it through the lens? What is the secret to perfect the art of scripting, direction and editing? To answer all the questions and hone the skill, a two-hour workshop was organised as a part of the AFS programme to discuss the various nuances of film making.

Sagarians, namely, Naman Chhaparia (XII), Deepak Jakhar (XII), Utkarsh Sonthalia (XI) and Sambhav Khandewal (XI) participated in the process and prepared a short film on the theme of citizenship and diversity.

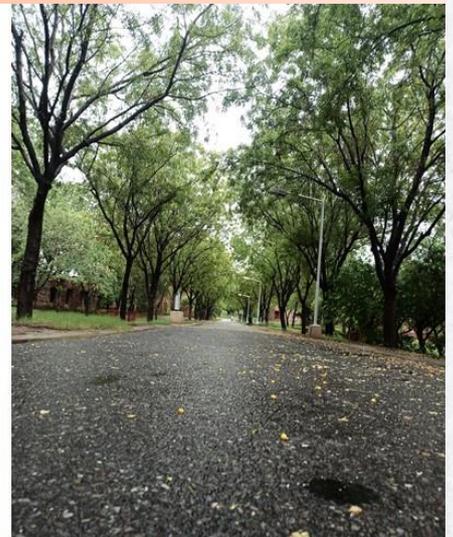

ROUND SQUARE HALL OF FAME

CONFESSIONS OF A PLUVIOPHILE

Ecstatic, gratifying, accomplishing, healing and harmonious are the few epithets that strike our mind when we talk about the heartwarming monsoons. The dewy petrichor of the post rain evenings, afternoons and nights make our hearts dance with implacable and unwavering joy. Such is the feeling that persists within our green campus that brightens up further during monsoon. The peacocks, the earth, the surrounding hills – all glitter, flicker, flash and blink when the rain traces them.

INSIGHTS FROM ALUMNA

Featuring - Adyasa Panda, Batch of 2019

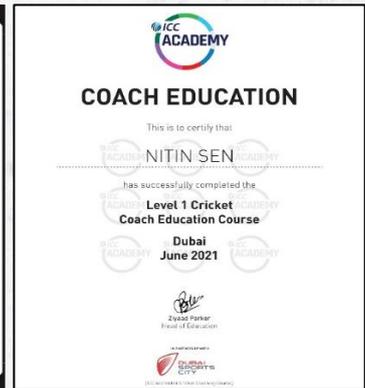

Art is like depth. It is to look at something and feel it in your heart. It's like drowning into one's perspective and creating your own. It takes you to a parallel world, increasingly slow and in the same vein you hear nothing. Like recounting your story to alien travellers, you show them the colours they couldn't see untamed and intrepid, beautiful and driven. It's to make the simplest of things feel extraordinary.

WORKSHOPS

*“Learning is never cumulative;
it is a movement of knowing which has no beginning and no end.” – Bruce Lee*

To upgrade their skills and be at par with the growing advancements in the field of education, the teachers at The Sagar School have embraced the process of learning and taking all the opportunities along their way.
