EXCEL WITH GRACE

*When the exams draw near Comes stress with fear Science, Maths and History
All seems like a mystery
The only way to ace
Is to smile and embrace
The hard work and the pace
Of the exam's bold face!*

While we complete half a lap of the academic year online, and before we pass on the baton to the other half it was the time of anatomy of examination. Amidst the connectivity woes, login issues, and answers script uploading troubles online examinations have been another milestone towards digitised system. It was a 'new-normal endeavour' for both – the teacher and the taught on the principles of Integrity, Honesty, Truthfulness and Trust.

The pupils downloaded their question papers on screen and uploaded their answer scripts on the GYANSAGAR portal. In all this process the Invigilators remained in touch with the candidates to give psychological support during the course of the examination.

EXAMS

When it is 11 o'clock, My brain goes shut and block,
I do not know what to do.
Scratch my head and bare through,

The air of exam hall,
The world's pressure
against the wall,
To see lit down face
And wish to have huge knowledge as haze.

But the experience of Exam,
Is similar to the game of ball shoot, Wherein you need to keep quiet and calm,
As a racer in his boots.

- Prachurya Sahoo

My exam experience was quite challenging. After all, these months had slightly reduced my memorising capacity. Other than that, it was the same as my earlier exams. The same nervousness you have had before, doubting your multiple-choice answers, writing the correct one first and then cutting it to write the wrong one, and the wave of relief that hits you after you're done with it.

The rush of blood in my vein, the clock ticking fast and the brain freeze...
 The Exam hall seemed to have vanished due to Lock down, but the last-minute revision was still the part of routine. For me, Online Exams were a test of how much I could restrain myself from being lazy at the comfort of my home. Hence, the Online Examinations have been a great success on challenging ourselves to pull us out of our comfy comforts.

Waking up every day!
Walking around aimlessly!
Looking for food.
Lockdown has been hard When everyone misses school.

Well online classes started but online exams were new for everyone. It was a game of Trust. The Respect and Trust which we owe to our teachers for their sleepless nights just to make lively presentations or checking the answer scripts. In this game of Trust, online exams had been a Success. It sure was different...as we missed running to the water point for that last revision with friends driven out of nervousness of not knowing the answers.

- Dishita Mukherji

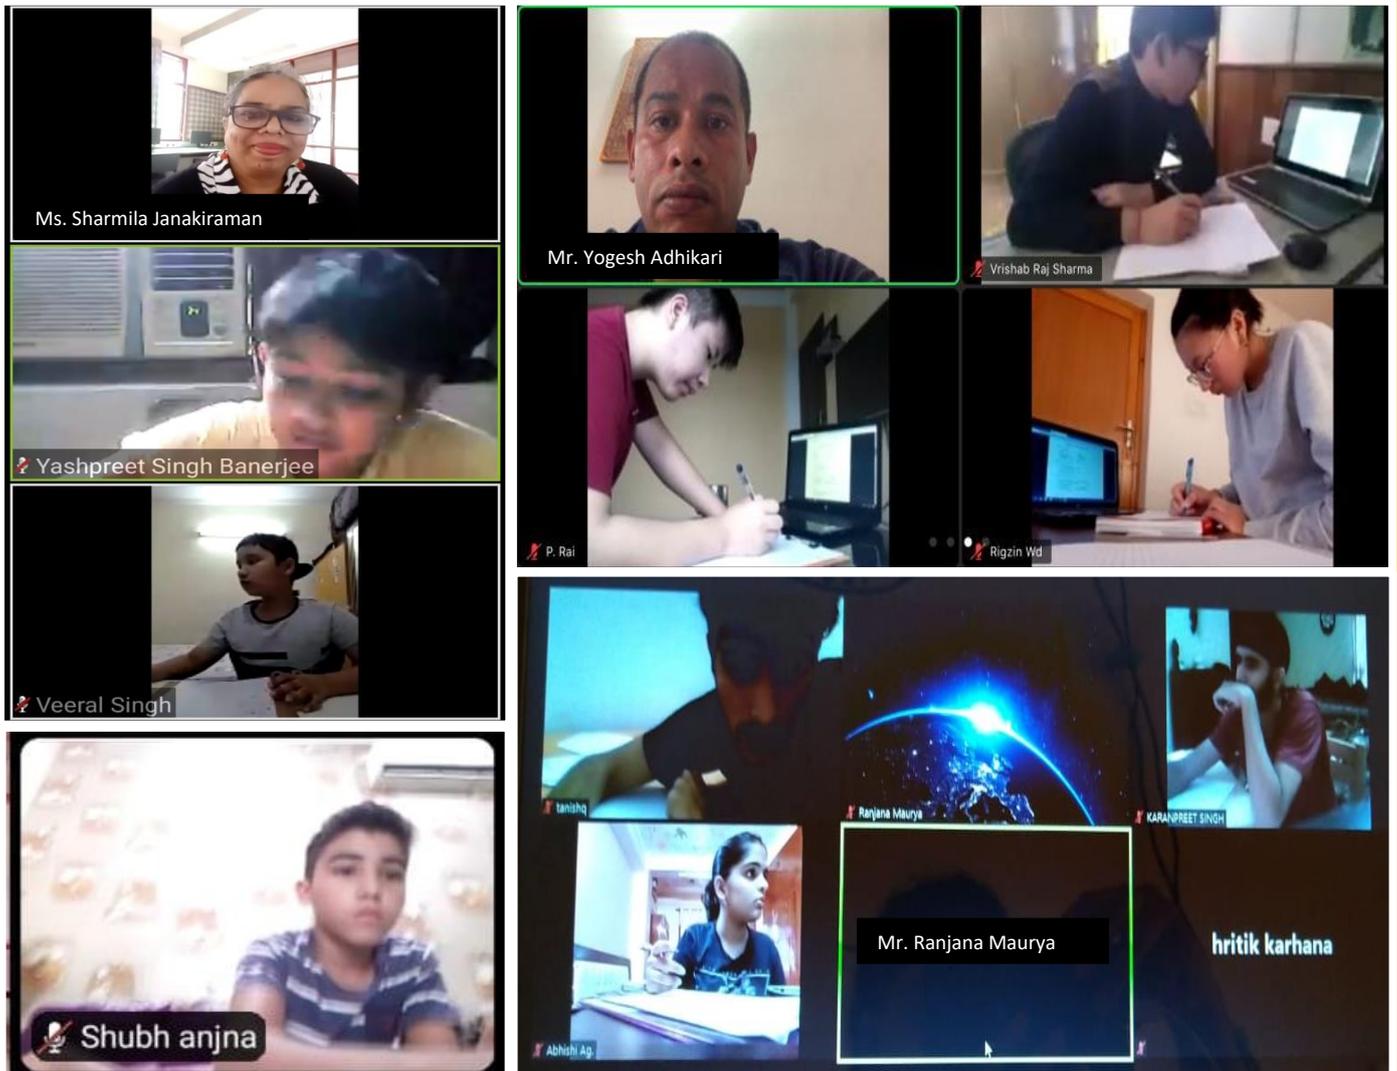

With the advantage of preserving paper, online examinations had been prosperity. Who would have thought we would have to go through an online examination? But the love and affection of the teachers made online examination a little more fun. We got out of beds early in the morning and after a long time have had the tension of examination.

With saving the environment, online examinations had been an amazing experience.

Well, struggles make us stronger, as we all are safe is what matters. and we should be grateful for that! Have a great day ahead and don't forget to wash your hands!

The COVID - 19 pandemic has altered everyone's lives drastically and students undoubtedly weren't excused. They were unable to return to their School and sit for examinations as normal therefore, School resorted to virtual exams.

In our current global situation, exams might not seem the main concern. However, to keep the writing competency and to prepare Sagarians for future it was a necessary exercise. For the students, exam stress made them a bit stress-free towards the current Pandemic situation. For the teachers as invigilators it was a challenge being thrown, won and savored. Well! We are happy and satisfied with our efforts and outcomes.

Sagarians – students at campus wrote exams with mask on And they also followed social distancing norms.
